NOVEMBER 2022

NEWSLETTER

Dear Partners,

The Canadian Children's Literacy Foundation (CCLF) is currently looking for organizations to apply to be a Community Delivery Partner in the delivery of a new program "Lost & Found: Pandemic Stories of Discovery as Told by Kids in Canada" (formerly known as "In My Words").

The foundation is seeking non-profit organizations to deliver some workshops for culturally diverse children and their families. A workshop toolkit will provide everything you need to run this workshop series and will guide your staff through providing a forum for children to identify, shape, and share their own pandemic narrative.

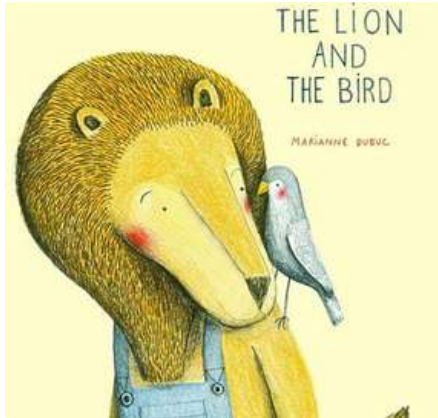

In so doing, these children will build their sense of self, resilience, literacy skills, and their connection to their communities.

These workshops can be run by the community organization as a distinct program initiative or as part of their existing programming. CCLF will compensate a select number of organizations for their participation by providing $100 per child participant.
